PRICE THREE CENTS

FIGHT YELLOW CAB SUBURBAN STANDS

Operators Protest Against Renewal of Company's Certificate

EXPIRED ON JUNE 1

Application by the Yellow Cab Company last Friday before the Public Service Commission for a renewal of its certificate of public convenience, which expires Tuesday, was met by a concerted effort on the part of suburban cab and bus operators to prevent the company from maintaining stands outside the city limits.

The Narberth Taxi Company and Patrick F. Donohue, local taxi men, have joined forces to resist the "yellow invasion." A meeting was held Thursday afternoon in the Philadelphia office of Joseph I. Carson to consider ways and means of blocking an expansion of Mitten management to the Main Line suburbs.

Narberth borough officials are much opposed to the idea of city taxi companies invading this territory. Cab stands in conspicuous spots and taxis "cruising" about over the residential streets are feared if the application is granted.

A group of operators situated in towns along the Main Line insisted to Commissioner James S. Benn, before whom the hearing was conducted, that terms of the application are too broad, since they provide for a service "in Philadelphia and vicinity."

William H. Sherwood, a commissioner for Lower Merion township, a witness for the opponents, testified that an adequate service is being rendered in the township by independents, and that invasion of that territory by the Yellow Cab Company would accomplish no improvement in service.

The company's certificate expires on June 1, but Commissioner Benn announced that it would be temporarily extended until the fight of the suburban operators has been heard in its entirety. E. S. Higgins, vice-president of the company, promised to produce at a later hearing a record of the company's telephone calls for service from suburban towns, showing a public demand which he said is not being met.

A MOTHERS' LUNCHEON

To Be Held on June 10 by the Girl Scouts.

Invitations to a luncheon on June 10 in interest of the Girl Scouts were sent, this week, to upwards of 100 mothers of the members by Mrs. W. E. Titus, head of the newly formed Mothers' Association of Narberth, and her committee.

This organization is the outgrowth of the activities of the Scoutmasters in the homes of the young girls. It was formed at a recent meeting of the Scouts for the purpose of assisting them in their work, as well as to acquaint the parents with the nature of the activities carried on at headquarters.

The forthcoming luncheon will be the initial affair of its kind. It is taking on the form of a "get-together" business session, designed to produce through the sale of the "platter ticket" the nucleus of a fund with which to furnish the new home of the Scouts in the Community Building. The charge for the luncheon will be 75 cents.

The Girl Scouts are now occupying their commodious quarters in the west wing of the Community Building, on the playground. Following the Memorial Day exercises an impromptu reception was held by the girls who participated in the parade. Many words of admiration for their headquarters were expressed.

BAND TO DELMONT

The Harold D. Speakman Post, of the American Legion, sent the members of the Lower Merion Band to Camp Delmont over the week-end as a reward for their valuable aid in playing during the parade and exercises Monday. The band, of 45 pieces, is made up of students at the high schools, under the leadership of Fred C. Patten.

The meeting of the Fathers' Association of the Boy Scouts, originally scheduled for June 2, has been set ahead to Friday, June 18.

To the left is the American Legion room. In the center is the Library; the curtain decorates a window of the Girl Scout headquarters.

HOSPITAL DRIVE OPENS AT DINNER

Campaign Workers to Attend
Rallies at Masonic Temple
Hall Today.

SUCCESS IS ASSURED

Despite the difficulty of elbowing through the shrine hosts more than 650 team workers and committee members attended the opening dinner of the Bryn Mawr Hospital's $1,000,000 campaign.

Samuel Rea, executive chairman of the campaign, who presided, said in part:

"The cause in which we are all vitally interested and which we inaugurate tonight and which we hope and believe will be a success is for the Bryn Mawr Hospital.

"You have all been informed of the purpose of this meeting which is in the interests of our hospital. It is a community work in which every citizen is interested, believes in, and feels that he wants to be a part of. I might say while on this branch of the subject, that all those contributing $100 or more become members of the corporation, entitled to vote for trustees.

Hospital Totally Inadequate.

"The Bryn Mawr Hospital is totally inadequate and must have enlarged facilities. It is to that end that we are working and we will, of course, be successful—must be, because this is a necessity which every family needs.

"The area served by our hospital is from Overbrook to Paoli, and from Conshohocken to Newtown Square. The estimated population of this area is in excess of 80,000 and we have not the proper hospital facilities to care for this great number of people. It is a fact that unless all indications fail, the growth of our community will be perhaps even greater in the next few years than it has in the past. Therefore, it is up to us to provide these facilities for this growing community."

Mrs. James D. Winsor, who has been actively interested in the hospital since it was founded, outlined the history of the institution and emphasized the pressing need of the increased facilities for which the campaign will provide.

Samuel M. Vaulain, president of the hospital, who spoke first, expressed his confidence in the success of the movement.

"I believe that there is no section of Pennsylvania in which the common interest of the people is so

Lower Merion Track Team Trips Norristown to Take Fifth Meet

The championship Lower Merion High track team which has been burning up all opponents with machine-like precision this spring achieved its fifth consecutive triumph Saturday when it carried off the twentieth annual Reading interscholastics from an open field by a score of 38 points. Coach Grosman's proteges placed in 10 of the 13 events and won the Kiwanis trophy cup.

Norristown High, ancient rival, finished second with a total of 35 1-3 points and was once more forced to eat humble pie. It was the fifth time in as many weeks that the county seat track men were compelled to acknowledge Lower Mer-

WIN NOMINATIONS

Benjamin H. Ludlow and Burd P. Evans, opponents of James S. Boyd for the State Senatorial nomination in the primary, both won the right to have their names on the ballot in the fall election, the former as the Prohibition nominee, the latter as the Labor candidate. There were only 12 prohibition votes cast, of which Ludlow got 10 and Evans two. On the Labor ticket the solitary ballot cast was for Evans.

There is little prospect of another fight, however. Mr. Ludlow announced after the primary that he would not run against Boyd and there is little likelihood that Candidate Evans will re-enter the lists.

Lower Merion Track Team Trips Norristown to Take Fifth Meet

The Maroon and White string of victories now includes the Swarthmore interscholastics at Swarthmore, the Suburban championships at Ardmore, the District championships at Muhlenburg, the State championships at Bucknell and at the Reading interscholastics.

In the meet Saturday Reading was third with 20 1-3. Harrisburg Tech was fourth with 20. Media scored 11. Lancaster registered 9. Lock Haven picked up 8. Harrisburg was the only Berks county team to get points, which were 3 1-3.

Lower Merion though finally victorious was constantly threatened by

LOWER MERION TENNIS TEAM HAS GOOD SEASON

Inexperienced Squad Wins Nine, Lose
Six for .600 Average.

The Lower Merion High tennis team ended a most successful season Friday, defeating Salesianum High, 3-2, on the opponents' courts. The match ended the Maroon and White season with nine matches won to six lost, for an average of .600.

Arokosh, Klein, Cook and Hartzler proved the most consistent winners for the Maroon and White and deserve much credit for the manner in which they organized and developed a winning combination out of an inexperienced squad.

Thursday evening at the Ardmore Y. M. C. A. banquet hall the election of Hi-Y officers for next year took place. Succeeding Ivan Gould, Wendell Stewart was elected president. Francis Shoemaker was made vice president; Paul Dohan, secretary, and Charles Pennypacker, treasurer.

The ritual was given the incoming officers and was followed by a short speech from each of them.

Three interesting orations were given in assembly Tuesday morning by Robert Dohard, Robert Seitch and Louis Mandes. The themes were based upon the Lower Merion High School, its facilities and its training.

AT CONVENTION

Many Narberth Women Present at Atlantic City.

Several Narberth women attended one or more sessions of the Biennial Convention of Federation of Women's Clubs on the Steel Pier at Atlantic City, during the past two weeks.

Club women from every State in the Union and from some other countries were there. The mornings were taken up with reports from the various delegates, while in the afternoons and evenings there were speeches and music. In a competition to discover which group sang their State song the best, Pennsylvania ranked high towards the end and seemed likely to win the prize.

Different days were devoted to different subjects. On Play day there were excursions and trips and for another day a visit to Philadelphia and the Sesquicentennial was planned.

Among those who attended from Narberth were Miss Margaret Runyon, Mrs. N. C. Anderson, Mrs. H. A. Jacobs, Mrs. L. C. Douglass, Mrs. E. H. Cockrill, Mrs. N. C. Rowley, Mrs. J. F. Donnelly, Mrs. J. S. Harris, Mrs. William Livingston, Mrs. J. A. Hongler, Mrs. L. H. Smith, Mrs. F. T. Van Auken, Mrs. M. Walsh and Mrs. E. L. Smith.

DO COME

The Evangel Circle of King's Daughters will keep open house to receive donations on Wednesday, June 16, at the Holiday House, 10 Sabine avenue, Narberth, Pa.

Luncheon will be served from 12 till 2, at 60 cents.

This year the Circle purchased a beautiful place at Valley Forge for the care of mothers and children during the summer and will be used as a house for convalescents during the winter months. The old Holiday House, to be used as a home for the aged, will be open to visitors on donation day.

We trust the people of Narberth with their many friends will respond liberally to this worthy cause, and that a large attendance may be expected.

With a parade a half-mile in length, and with hundreds of residents present, Narberth braved showers and threatening skies Monday to dedicate the new war memorial before the Community Building.

The dedication formed a part of the annual Memorial day exercises under the auspices of the American Legion, which this year took on a special significance.

The parade formed at the fire house at 9.15. Two policemen formed an escort, followed by the colors, the Lower Merion band, veterans of the Civil War in an automobile, the American Legion, the Narberth Home Guard, the American Legion Auxiliary, the Girl Scouts, school children, Boy Scouts and fire company.

The line of march was from Elm Hall to Haverford avenue to Essex to Price, to Narberth, over the bridge to Woodside, to Wynnewood, under the tunnel to Windsor and thence to the Community Building.

On either side of the monument were members of the home guard and the American Legion. Seated before the tablet were three gold star mothers, Mrs. H. C. Speakman, Mrs. J. F. Smith and Mrs. John McQuiston. Two members of the G. A. R. were also in places of honor. They were Rev. Shindle and J. R. McDevitt, of Windsor avenue.

The dedication ceremonies began at 10.15 with music by the band, led by Fred C. Patten, after which ex-Burgess Carl B. Metzger presented the memorial to the borough.

Mr. Metzger spoke of the history of the project, telling of the plans formulated on October 25, 1919, when the reception to the returned soldiers was held. Members of the home guard collected funds by means of "thank boxes," and the balance left after the reception expenses were defrayed became the nucleus of the memorial fund.

Burgess Henry A. Frye accepted the memorial on behalf of the borough. He spoke of the responsibility of the borough and of the gratitude of the citizens for the work of the committee.

Mr. Metzger called on Mrs. John F. Smith, one of Narberth's gold star mothers, to unveil the tablet. As the drapery was drawn aside,

BANK EXAMINER APPROVES LOCAL B. & L. SOCIETY

Legion Shareholders Asked to Cooperate in Survey.

The officers and directors of the Narberth American Legion Building and Loan Association were quite pleased with the result of the recent examination of the association by the State banking examiner. The thoroughness of the examinations now conducted by the State Department of Banking should be reassuring to all the stockholders of building associations.

There is one phase of the examination in which all the stockholders having stock loans are requested to co-operate, viz: To reply promptly to letters addressed by the State banking examiner verifying the amounts of the loans as set forth on the books of the association. This is a new departure upon the part of the examiner and is similar to the procedure adopted by certified public accountants when they make an audit, viz: to send out letters to all the creditors asking if the record of the account as set forth on the books of the particular business is correct.

New stockholders may subscribe to stock in the April series by paying the entrance fee and three months' dues, without fines.

As usual, the meetings of the association will be held on the first Tuesday of each month. In the future these meetings will be held in the office of the Narberth Coal and Building Material Company at the corner of Narberth and Haverford avenues. The location of this office is so central that it is believed the stockholders will find it an added convenience to pay dues here, and for this reason the change was made.

LOWER MERION TRACK MEN
TRIP RIVAL TO WIN AGAIN

Coach Rhoton's Norristown outfit. With nine of the 13 events completed the up-valley performers were leading 26 to 22. Lower Merion, however, scored heavily in the next two events, the pole vault and the discus throw, and counted 12 points to Norristown's 4. This gave the Ardmore school a 34-to-30 lead.

Grosman's proteges maintained their lead in the final two events, the broad and the high jumps and tallied four points to Norristown's three and one-third. The county seat team had no entry in the broad jump.

Lower Merion achieved its triumph largely through its ability to take advantage of the shortcomings of Captain Earl Cassel, Norristown's star runner, and Carl Helberling, the county seat discus and javelin thrower, who has been winning with monotonous regularity.

Captain Eg Morris, of Merion, heaved the discus a distance of 120 feet 7-1/2 inches, bettering the mark of Helberling by 2-1/2 inches. In the javelin event, Wilson on his last throw tossed the stick for a distance of 145 feet 3 inches, several inches better than the Norristown man's best effort.

Cassel, the county seat flash who has been cleaning up in most of the running events he has been entered in, failed Norristown in the 100-yard dash. He finished third, Media winning.

Kohlas, of Lower Merion, tied Burd, of Lock Haven, the State champ in the pole vault, for first place. Both men cleared the bar at 10 feet 8-1/3 inches.

Norristown and Lower Merion will again come to grips tomorrow in the annual Norristown interscholastic meet at the county seat. The entry list announced Tuesday by Norristown athletic authorities indicates that the affair will be the largest of its kind held in eastern Pennsylvania this spring.

There will be three classes, Suburban A, B and Open Class. Following is the entry list:

Suburban, Class A.

Abington, Cheltenham, Darby, Lansdowne, Lower Merion, Norristown, Ridley Park, Upper Darby and West Chester.

Suburban, Class B.

Open Class.

MARTINELLI BIG
FESTIVAL FEATURE

Joins Orchestra, Quartet and Dancers in Main Line Affair

VARIETY IS KEYNOTE

The fifth annual Main Line Music Festival took place Saturday night on the Bryn Mawr polo field before the largest audience that has yet attended, and this in spite of a rather threatening evening that was none too warm for an out-of-doors affair.

Clarence C. Nice, of Narberth, conducted the forces which gave the concert, these consisting of 50 members of the Philadelphia Orchestra; Giovanni Martinelli, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company; the Marmains—Miriam, Irene and Phyllis—three graceful and charming dancers, and a quartet composed of members of La Scala Philadelphia Opera Company, namely, Zena Zielinski, soprano; Ada Paggi, contralto; J. De Gaviria, tenor, and Alfredo Valenti, basso.

The program began with a bugle call by Thomas Libby, of the Boy Scouts, four others standing behind him on the platform holding the American flag. The overture by the orchestra was that to "Mignon," and after the intermission the orchestra also played an operatic medley, the members of the audience being requested to write the names of the operas represented on a page prepared for this purpose in the program, prizes being given for correct answers.

Martinelli Big Star.

Mr. Martinelli was, of course, the principal attraction. He was in splendid voice and his trumpet-like tones were exhibited to excellent advantage not only in the arias which he sang, two of the most famous of the tenor repertoire—"O Paradiso," from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," and "Cielo e mar," from "La Gioconda"—but also in the encore numbers which he was obliged to give. The rest which he has apparently taken since the close of the Metropolitan season has improved his voice, and Saturday evening it was at its best in clearness and brilliancy and his artistry in singing also was very much in evidence.

The Marmains danced well, as they always do, the dances being delightful alike in conception and in execution. They were accorded a cordial reception after each number. Both in the solo and in the ensemble dancing their work was thoroughly appreciated by the audience.

The quartet at the close was from the second act of "Martha" and was sung in costume. Mr. De Gaviria perhaps carried off the honors of the number, partly because of his performance and partly because the composer has assigned the most important part to the tenor voice. The other members of the quartet did excellent work and the closing number was one of the most enjoyable of the entire concert.

LOSE JUNIOR MEET

Scoring its second athletic conquest over Lower Merion Junior High in as many days, Norristown Stewart Junior High last Wednesday completed competition with its Main Line rival for the current school year. Norristown won by a close margin, the final score being 51 1-2 to 46 1-2 points.

Making clean sweeps in both broad jump and pole vault gave Norristown a lead in the middle of the meet which enabled Hedstrom's athletes to compile the victory. In the pole vault, Detterer, C. Haines and K. Singleton all tied for first place at 8 feet, 9 inches.

Mike Cotteta ran two very nice races. In the 880-yard run, the little bronzed plugger beat Bill Kohlas, of Lower Merion to the tape in a 2:13 half. Mike did an even 59 seconds in the quarter to beat the long strides of Deubler, a lanky Lower Merion student of Coach Harmon's jurisdiction.

Lower Merion made a clean sweep in the shot put and also won the relay by the margin of 15 yards.

A special junior team relay race was staged. Lower Merion won this, but it did not count in the point scoring.

Lower Merion's senior relay team came close to a record, running the event in 1 minute, 41 5-10 seconds.

At the close of the sixth event, the score was 28 to 26, in favor of Stewart.

The loss was the first track meet dropped by Lower Merion's junior team in three years of competition.

SEEK MORE STATE MUSIC INTEREST

Instructors Go on Record for Finish of Hurtful Economy

3 FROM HERE ATTEND

Deploing the disbanding of the musical department in the State Department of Public School Instruction, the 150 supervisors of music of Southeastern Pennsylvania in session in Norristown last week passed a resolution requesting to have the department restored as a part of the educational program in Harrisburg.

The department was eliminated as an economy measure by the Governor. A committee was appointed to draw up the resolutions with Miss Marion Jameson, of Norristown, as chairman.

Miss Jameson, musical supervisor of Norristown, was unanimously elected chairman of the conference district. The meeting will be held next year in West Chester.

Lower Merion Chairman.

The afternoon session opened at the Thomas J. Stewart Junior High School with Miss Laura B. Staley, supervisor of music, at Ardmore, as chairman. Miss Staley urged supervisors to help the teacher of the one-room school house in stressing music, as it is the urban and rural schools where education in music is often neglected.

Miss Mary M. Clarke and Bruce C. Beach were the other Lower Merion township representatives at conference. Miss Gertrude Ferron, of Haverford, also attended.

A motion was passed to have the group become affiliated with the Southeastern District of the Pennsylvania State Educators Association. Members were extended an invitation from Mrs. Francis Clark, second vice president of the National Federation of Music Clubs to attend music festivities in connection with the convention of the National Education Association, June 29 to July 2.

CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION

Meets and Reports Progress in Clean-up.

The regular meeting of the directors of the Main Line Citizens' Association was held Monday, May 24, Vice President Mutch in the chair.

The chair announced that Dr. Dewees had accepted the appointment of acting chairman of the Visiting Nurse Committee until the return of President Lesley.

Mrs. Reed, chairman of the Parks and Playground Committee, announced the donation of $50 from Mrs. Winsor to replant the Ardmore Park.

The Housing Committee reported 77 interviews during the month, also a special sanitary survey made at the request of the health officer, and the compilation and forwarding of the data. The committee also announced that they had called attention to the problem which will result this summer from the absence of comfort stations and camping space in this district.

Storm-proofing the Service

Experiments with underground telephone lines were made as early as 1882.

In the beginning the wires were wrapped in cotton and twisted into cables, usually of a hundred wires each. To prevent moisture getting in and breaking down the electrical circuits, the cables were soaked in oil.

At Philadelphia in 1890 was laid the first lead-sheathed "dry core" cable, in which the wires were wrapped with paper. This marked the beginning of what has now become the universal type of construction. And the hundred wires of the early cables have now increased to 2400, inclosed in a lead sheath less than three inches in diameter.

The use of these cables in urban development is well known.

Not so generally appreciated, however, is the extent to which they are reaching out through the state, tying the cities together.

Across the central part of Pennsylvania, from east to west, is the longest; and continuations of it already reach to New York and Boston, Baltimore and Washington, and Chicago and intermediate cities.

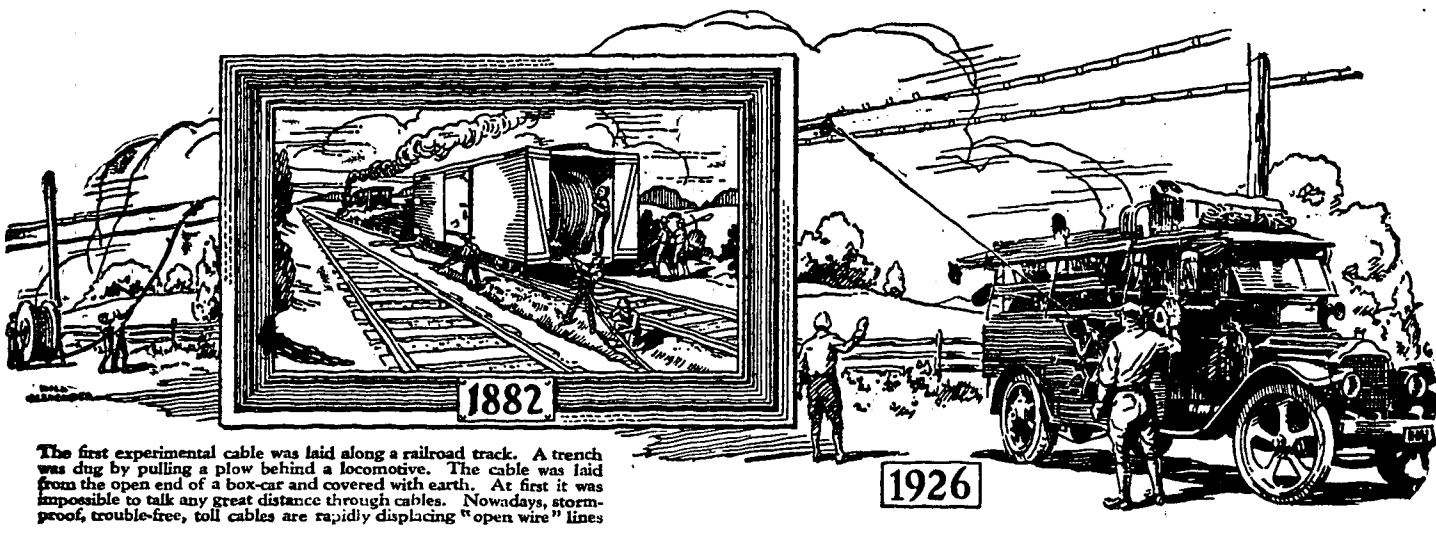

Similar cables radiate from Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and are steadily extending onward. North from Reading to Bethlehem, Easton, Hazleton, Wilkes-Barre, and Scranton is another very important link of an inter-city cable system that is now growing at the rate of three hundred miles a year in Pennsylvania.

Twenty years ago such cables would not have "talked." Today, furnishing a service which is as flexible and natural as a cross-town connection, they comprise an outstanding example of the continuous progress of telephony.

ONE POLICY, ONE SYSTEM, UNIVERSAL SERVICE

Now Is Your Opportunity!

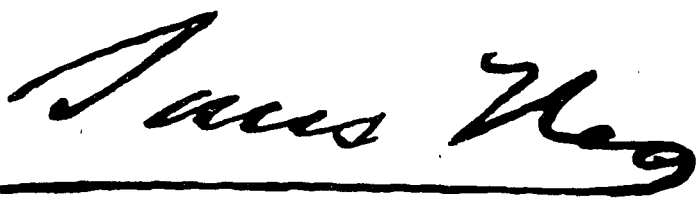

NOW is your opportunity to share in a community enterprise for the community good—an enterprise that will result in good, not for a few, but for all the people of your Hospital district.

Every one of us may need the Bryn Mawr Hospital, or our families may. Unless we have helped to make it big enough for all, what right have we to count upon its care? If, on the other hand, we have contributed our fair share, then we may justly feel entitled to the benefits. And if there are any who are unable to give, shall not the rest of us step forward to fill the ranks?

More than 600 of your fellow citizens now are organized in a working force to offer to you this opportunity to create for your district the hospital facilities it must have.

This force of earnest, public-spirited men and women knows the urgent need for an enlarged hospital and during this week are laying before you the story which inspired them.

This Campaign is the organized effort to accomplish a large result quickly and efficiently at the least cost. The Campaign method is the only method which will give our community the increased hospital service it must have. With your earnest help, it will succeed.

CHAIRMAN EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The above is the last of a series of letters by Mr. Samuel Rea, Executive Chairman, written in the interest of this campaign.

You Should Subscribe to This Movement BECAUSE:

You may need the Bryn Mawr Hospital some time for yourself, your family or your near friends. It must be ready for you when you want it.

The hospital must be enlarged so that service can be given to others as well as yourself.

Children and old people must be given skilled and tender care under the most advantageous conditions.

It is a reproach to our community that its hospital capacity is insufficient to safeguard public health.

DINNER MARKS OPENING OF HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN

great as it is in the so-called Main Line district.

"The Bryn Mawr Hospital is not a charity—it is a necessity, and it has been a necessity ever since we started to work to found a hospital in this community. Credit is due not alone to the men, our leading citizens and their friends, the doctors who have given all the time which it was possible for them to give to the up-building of it, but also very largely to the earnest work of our Board of Lady Visitors.

"When we decided to expand this hospital, we did so without a cent of debt, we owed nobody a dollar. Our property has all been paid for. We have always kept up with our operating costs.

For the Whole Community.

"This hospital does not belong to a few people on the Main Line—it is the hospital of the whole community on the Main Line. It is your hospital—it is not mine, nor is it the property of the Board of Trustees. Let us give everyone the opportunity to contribute to this great work and to feel that they have an interest in this institution which we all love so well, and to which we are willing to give our time, our strength and our financial support. The large attendance this evening augurs well for the success of this drive for $1,000,000."

Others who made addresses were C. Willing Hare, C. D. Folsom, J. M. Willcox and Rev. R. G. Gamble, who recalled the early beginnings of the hospital under the leadership of Dr. George S. Gerhard.

The final speaker was Benjamin H. Ludlow, who stressed the need of the hospital and spoke of the great amount of service it has rendered to the poor, and who pledged, on behalf of all the workers, the ultimate success of the campaign.

Rally Lunches Today.

Mrs. Stacy B. Lloyd, chairman of the women's division, will preside at a report rally today at a luncheon at Masonic Hall, of all of the women's teams. The men's division, under the leadership of Benjamin H. Ludlow, will meet at the same place for dinner.

MEMORIAL DEDICATED

Mr. Metzger said, "We are gathered today for a grateful and patriotic duty, to dedicate this monument, a perpetual memorial to our citizens who went to the world war from Narberth, and to those who died in their country's service."

After a prayer by Rev. Shindle, a member of the G. A. R., Past Commander George Smith, of the post, requested the audience to stand with bowed heads and silence for 30 seconds in solemn memory of our heroic dead.

Mr. Metzger, in formally dedicating the tablet, said, "In the name of the citizens of our community I now dedicate this memorial to those who served in the world war from Narberth and to the memory of those who fell in the service of their country by land and by sea. Their lives are glorious before us; their deeds are an inspiration. As they served America in time of war, yielding their last full measure of devotion, may we serve America in time of peace, so living that Justice, Freedom and Democracy may endure forever."

The address of the day was made by Rev. Frank M. Gray, former chaplain of the Home Guards and former pastor of the Narberth Methodist Church. He spoke of those who had died in the service, reading out their names, and telling of his personal knowledge of them.

"This memorial," Rev. Gray said, "should be a memorial to our children and young folks."

Tristan B. duMarais recited "In Flanders Fields" with deep feeling and pleasing style, bringing to a close the dedication ceremonies.

The American Legion then took up the regular Memorial day service, under the leadership of Arthur W. Burns.

The sergeant-at-arms, at request of the commander, deposited on the monument a wreath of flowers, "as a token of our loving memory." Commander Burns then spoke: "These flowers may wither, but the spirit of which they are a symbol will endure until the end of time. Comrades, salute the dead."

Taps was sounded, and the ceremonies ended with the Star-Spangled Banner.

A GOOD STORY

"Precious Bane" Recommended by the Library to All Discriminating Readers.

The Library aims to satisfy so many different tastes in reading, so long as they are decent, that any book that is on the Library shelves can be recommended to people who like that kind of book, but there is one group of readers for whom recommendations are seldom made and seldom required. They are the people who appreciate really good literature and for whom any story, no matter how ingeniously plotted, is a bore and a waste of time if it is not well written. The annual output of books for readers of that group is comparatively limited. That is why the Library now calls especial attention to "Precious Bane," by Mary Webb. It is a new book, now available at the Community Library.

Many local people will recall Marion Gaffin Ludlow, who formerly lived at 17 Montgomery avenue and is now a member of the staff of E. P. Dutton & Company, of New York, book publishers. A circular letter in reference to "Precious Bane," written recently by Mrs. Ludlow in the course of her work, has come to the attention of the Librarian and is reproduced below because it gives an excellent summary of the book, and because Mrs. Ludlow's friends will be interested. It is as follows:

"Once in a long time a character in fiction takes hold on your imagination and establishes itself so vividly in your memory that it is never entirely forgotten. Once in a long while you read a love story so beautiful and so powerful, set against a background so lovely or so tragic, that the story itself is unforgettable. Or sometimes a book is memorable through the years for the beauty and strength of its style—the rare quality of its diction.

"When these qualities are combined we hail a book that will live. This has happened in 'Precious Bane,' by Mary Webb—a character study and a love story with a richness, a sureness and a deep strength that are very rare.

"How the precious bane, ambition, entered like iron into the life and soul of Gideon Sarn, a thoroughly human, struggling and sorely beset young man, is told in the first person by Prudence Sarn, his sister. In the telling, the old customs such as sin-eating, love-spinning, caking and the hiring fair take their natural place and contribute to the quaint flavor and the eeriness of its atmosphere. The masterliness of the book, however, is personified in the character Gideon Sarn.

"We could quote many congratulatory and appreciative reviews from those who have known the book on the other side, citing characteristics of 'Precious Bane' analogous with certain works of Thomas Hardy, Nathaniel Hawthorne, George Eliot and Walter de la Mare. To such distinguished company we nominate 'Precious Bane.'"

Old Christ Church.

There are certain days in the year when a sort of fever grips us. We long to sit down somewhere in quiet and think; dream of the past; our ancestors, and what they did for us; the forefathers of others, and how they have aided in the making of our wonderful country. This fever makes us wish to visit the scenes of these long-ago doings; to see with our own eyes the background on which that famous drama, "The Founding of the United States," was staged.

I had been attacked by this historic fever for some time, and, in the advanced stage, I visited the Old Christ Church in Philadelphia. The rest of this paper, as you have probably guessed by this time, will be devoted to the description of this old, old scenery which, though not the most prominent property in life today, is employed because of its great age and historic beauty.

As you know, the church is far downtown, on Second street above Market. The stately old edifice is surrounded by dilapidated stores of every kind, by old ramshackle dwelling houses, inhabited by people of every race and color. The approach to the chapel is as unlovely as the interior is lovely. The yard is paved by brick and encircled by an iron fence. In many places the paving is interrupted by slabs of cement or marble, on which are engraved the names of those buried beneath. Many of these gravestones are elevated and form the entrances to family vaults. On one side of the building are some laurel bushes, which greatly help to dispel the gloom in summer.

As I entered this sacred old place of worship a certain peace came to me. I gazed at the high white nave and the simply decorated, dignified chancel in great awe. The historic fever overcame me, and I sat down to dream and think of by-gone times. I imagined the church slowly filling with our great-great grandfathers and their families. There was a simple-minded air of belief and religion about them which abashed me. They entered their various box-like pews—Betty Ross her tiny one, and George Washington his large one—pulled out their footstools and reverently knelt down to pray. Unconsciously I bowed my head. Then the minister mounted the steps to the pulpit and solemnly read the text: "In the beginning God created heaven and earth."

"Surely," I thought, as I sat among those devout men and women, "surely, God also made the United States of America the crude, raw country it was in Revolutionary times and the great, powerful nation which it is today." Slowly the illusion faded, and I was again alone in the church of long ago.

The ancient sanctuary was founded in 1695, under a provision in the original charter of King Charles II to William Penn, through the influence of Rt. Rev. Henry Compton, bishop of London. The church is chartered by the Penn family, who, in their day, sat in pew No. 60. John Penn, the last male member of his line, is buried near the pulpit. The present church was begun in 1727. Many alterations were made before the people were satisfied. After the pulpit had been moved twice, the gallery enlarged, the seats altered and the 24-branch chandelier hung the church was pronounced completed in 1744.

The money for the steeple and the chime of eight bells was raised by means of a lottery, which would prove that our Pennsylvania forefathers were not averse to raising money in that seemingly unrighteous way. Benjamin Franklin, a member of the committee, was inspired at one time to fly his famous kite from the spire—then the highest point in the city. However, he never attempted it, which is, perhaps, just as well for him, for who can tell what might have befallen him while perched on that lofty pinnacle? From the ground it did not look particularly comfortable or inviting. This section of the building was completed in 1753, and the bells were imported from England, supposedly to call the men and women to church. On July 4, 1776, though, they pealed forth a response to the Liberty Bell, in its proclamation of our freedom. These bells have seen quite a bit of American history. The Continental Congress removed them with the Liberty Bell while the British possessed the city and Washington froze at Valley Forge. Longfellow refers to them in the closing scene of his "Evangeline": "Then as she mounted the stairs to the corridors, cooled by the east wind, Distant and soft on her ear fell the chimes from the Christ Church."

The details of the church are Colonial; the bricks and most of the material were imported from England. The pulpit was installed in 1769, and nearly all the gravestones and tablets are from Colonial and Revolutionary days. There was one of these graves in the main aisle of the church which contained the body of a young girl in her twenties. The inscription informed me that "she made beautiful music in the service of God." It seemed so homelike and yet so respectful a tribute to the singer that I shall always remember it.

The white woodwork of the interior is very well kept and always spotless. As I gazed I thought of the cold stone churches of today and decided in favor of the older one. The pews are like boxes, stretched a little and painted white. The glistening paint, however, is relieved by a bank of dark wood around the top. The decorator, even then, had to think of the hands, not always clean, which would caress the pews. He showed remarkable common sense in remedying this. The seats are upholstered in red, and the worn footstools are also covered with the scarlet cloth.

George Washington and his wife occupied pew No. 58 while he was President. John Adams, while in office, and Lafayette, on his second visit to America, used this pew. One of the seats in this much-used pew was broken when I was there. Can it be that the succession of great men has played havoc with its stability? Such seems the case.

Bishop White is buried under the great stained-glass window of the chancel. He was the first bishop of Pennsylvania and long presiding bishop of the United States, the first in the American Episcopate derived from the Church of England. The stone slab which covers his grave is ornamented with gold in the various forms which signify a bishop.

The pulpit, from the rear of the church, reminded me of a gigantic onion, stood on end in the foremost pew. Narrow at the bottom, it gradually takes on breadth until, at the top, the minister has quite a space in which to expound his theories. In spite of my crude comparison, the grace and dignity of the old pulpit are not lost upon me. It is reached by a narrow flight of steps guarded by banisters. The gallery, which extends around three sides of the church, was inaccessible because the door leading into it was locked.

The windows are a point which I have purposely left until near the last. Several of these are plain, being without any embellishment whatever, but others are marvelous. They show small scenes and pictures, mostly from the life of Christ. The little figures are nearly perfect, and the light streaming through them gives an odd but awe-compelling effect. In one of the windows hangs a small piece of stained glass, beneath which is written: "A fragment from the broken window of the Cathedral at Rheims. Taken during the World War and donated to Christ Church." This reminder of a more recent conflict than the Revolution has a peculiar effect—rather a jarring one in my case—one of interruption of the past by a memento of (almost) the present.

The baptismal font dates from 1695 and is that in which Bishop White was baptized. It is kept entirely inclosed in wood—probably against the curiosity of sightseers.

The small room in the rear of the church contains many relics of former days. There are Bibles in glass cases—Bibles of all sizes, with queer, old-fashioned print which is extremely hard to read. All are yellow with their great age. The valuable library, inaugurated by Commissary Bray, in 1695, is kept here.

Today this remarkable reminder of the past reposes in stately beauty where all may see it, admire it, and go away cheered and strengthened. During the coming Sesquicentennial International Exposition visitors will find no landmark of greater historic significance and charm. It is hoped that they will appreciate the church which means so much to all loyal Americans and to America as a country.
